Fall enrollment tops last year's record by 132

by Laura Fraembs

Eastern's enrollment reached a record high of 9,717 this fall, up 132 from last year's 9,585 total, Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams said Monday.

Williams termed the record enrollment "very gratifying" because "overall, the national trend is down." "I think that the atmosphere and quality here has attracted students," he said. He also named Eastern's recent athletic successes and continually improving academic programs and faculty as drawing cards for prospective students.

"The 9,000 plus voices of students who were here and found it a good place for living and learning" also help in recruitment, Williams said.

Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin said Monday the record enrollment is a reflection of the fact that "students are generally pleased with what they see at the university."

However, if students continue to be this pleased, Eastern will have a problem in accomodating them, Williams said.

"We were really designed and developed to a level where we could handle a head count of approximately 10,000. We're now approaching that, and I look for a plateauing or leveling off," he said.

If enrollment would continue to increase until it exceeded 10,000, "we would have to make a decision on a cut-off date" for applications, Williams said.

"Quality is much more important than quantity. We would not pursue quantity at the expense of quality," he said.

The breakdown of this year's final enrollment shows 8,858 undergraduates and 859 graduate students, up from last year's totals of 8,745 and 840.

Individual class totals show the freshman class is once again the largest class with a total of 2,889, up 30 from last year.

The sophomore class experiences a slight drop, going from 2,002 to 1,998, while the junior class increased from 1,975 last year to 2,054 this year.

The senior class increased by eight this year, from 1,909 to 1,917.

In what Williams said is "probably the most interesting rising in enrollment," the number of graduates increased from 840 last year to 859 this year.

Williams said he is very pleased by this increase because "across the nation graduate enrollments are universally down."

He attributed Eastern's success in graduate enrollment to lots of work in recruiting, by both himself and the various departments.

When noting the breakdown between men and women in this year's total enrollment—5,361 women and 4,356 men—Williams said, "We're always topheavy women."

"No one can challenge me on the basis of recruiting women. Our applications consistently run 17 to 21 percent more women than men," he said.

Williams said he does not yet have a final breakdown between part-time and full-time students, but the final figures should show "about 90 percent full-time."

Although enrollment is the highest ever this year, Williams said the tuition increase made this fall undoubtedly had some effect on the final totals.

"Every change and demand on the American dollar has an effect, he said. "Obviously some students out there had to change their plans,"

Williams also said this has been "one of the smoothest years in housing," despite the increase in the number of students.

He said this is due in part to the fact that people in the Charleston community have become "more aware" of the housing shortage and have made additional housing available.

He added that his office "will make every effort" to help prospective students find housing by seeing that they get a list of available rooms in Charleston.

Williams also gave credit for this year's record enrollment to a group effort by faculty and administrators.

"You've got to have lots of people to do a very fine job, and I believe they have," he said.

U.S., Russia discuss Soviet troops in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union on Monday began what State Department officials say might be a protracted series of negotiations over Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who returned to Washington Sunday to represent the Soviets in the talks, scheduled their first meeting on the issue Monday afternoon.

Dobrynin has been on vacation in the Soviet Union and has not been in Washington since the announcement last month that the Soviet troops had been discovered in Cuba.

Prior to his first meeting with Dobrynin, Vance met in a closed session on Capitol Hill with members of the Senate Armed Services Committee for discussions of the Soviet-Cuban situation. The panel also scheduled private testimony from CIA Director Stansfield Turner.

There was no official word about the bargaining positions Vance and Dobrynin would bring to the talks, but State Department officials said they did not expect anything to be settled in the first session.

Last week, Vance and President Carter both said the "status quo" in Cuba is not acceptable, but they have refused to say what changes would satisfy them.

Vance has said the administration realizes that the Soviets have had military advisers in Cuba for many years. It is the recent discovery that 2,000 to 3,000 of them were organized as a combat unit that is a matter of serious concern, he said.

Key members of the Senate have been less restrained. Many have said the Soviet troops must be removed if the new strategic arms limitation treaty is to be ratified.

That kind of pressure will make it more difficult to reach a satisfactory solution to the Cuban problem, administration sources have said.

The Soviets have largely kept quiet about the furor. Unofficially, Soviet diplomats have insisted that the troops are not a combat force but are advisers who have been in Cuba for many years.

They say the Cubans have a right to invite the Soviets to their island, and that there is nothing in U.S.-Soviet understandings of 1962 and 1970 that bars them.

The State Department conceded the latter point last week, saying the agreements that settled the 1962 Cuban missile crisis and the 1970 Cienfuegos submarine base crisis covered only offensive weapons systems and not combat troops.

A hint about the possible Soviet position emerged over the weekend when an official Soviet radio commentator made mention of the American naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Pregnant woman held for beating

ORLAND PARK, ILL.—Bond was set at $100,000 Monday for a pregnant 26-year-old woman charged in the beating and slashing of the wife of her husband's former boss.

Michelle Hrynyk of Palos Hills was charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery, in connection with an incident Sunday in which authorities say Clara Sugarman, 53, was attacked in her $400,000 home and then fled after the attacker started a fire.

Police said Mrs. Hrynyk's husband, Gerald, was an employee of Mrs. Sugarman's husband, Bernard, but recently had been dismissed. The attack was part of an attempt by Mrs. Hrynyk to extort $10,000 from Mrs. Sugarman, police said.

Mrs. Sugarman was reported in critical condition with multiple lacerations and internal injuries from the attack in which police said the victim was chased from room to room in her home for about three hours. Police believe Mrs. Sugarman was slashed repeatedly with a pair of garden shears and said they found blood spattered in almost every room of the house.

Mrs. Sugarman apparently opened her door to Mrs. Hrynyk at about 1 p.m. Sunday, police said. They said the attacker left the home about 4 p.m. after setting the house on fire. They said Mrs. Sugarman managed to flee the home and go to a neighbor's home for help.

Bill forces work for welfare aid

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Saying it would be too much work for the state to handle, Gov. James R. Thompson said Monday he has asked the Legislature to let local governments administer a program requiring some able-bodied welfare recipients to work for their benefits.

Thompson used his amendatory veto powers to recommend the changes in legislation approved last June by the General Assembly. As the legislation was sent to the governor, it would have required the state to administer the program rather than local governments.

In explaining his partial veto, Thompson said in a statement from his press office: "I strongly concur with the intent of this legislation."

"But as passed by the Legislature, the measure would create insurmountable administrative problems for the Illinois Department of Public Aid..."

Under the bill as it was approved by lawmakers, the state's 68,000 recipients of general assistance welfare would have been required to register to work for units of local government.

The measure affects only persons on general assistance and not those receiving benefits for blindness or other disabilities. It does not apply to families with dependent children getting aid under the state's Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, the largest single category of welfare assistance.

Major quake may hit Tokyo

TOKYO—The 11.7 million people of Tokyo are living with a geophysical time bomb that could explode at any moment. Despite elaborate planning for an emergency, nobody knows how the city would come through a major earthquake.

"Disaster strikes when we least expect it," says Disaster Planning Director Yoshinobu Asakura, quoting a Japanese proverb.

"There are too many unknowns to accurately predict what a major quake would do to this city. All we know for certain is that eventually a big one will hit us, and damage will be extensive."

Asakura's fatalistic prediction reflects something known to many Japanese - their nation rests atop an unstable archipelago where subterranean disturbances are a daily occurrence.

The National Meteorological Agency says Japan is shaken each year by about 1,000 jishin - earth tremors - strong enough to be felt by humans. Yet few Japanese have experienced a major quake.

On the Richter scale used in the United States, the Kanto quake would have reached 7.9, just short of an 8, or "great" quake. San Francisco's 1906 quake, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, also has been estimated at 7.9 on the Richter scale.

"Today, houses are much better built and the city is better prepared to handle a major disaster," Asakura said. On the other hand, he noted that Tokyo now has skyscrapers - some 50 stories tall - subways, underground shopping malls and many densely populated residential areas that didn't exist at the time of the 1923 quake.

Government report last year concluded that if a quake of that size struck Tokyo on a winter evening, when heating equipment was in use, 36,000 people would die, 63,000 would be injured, and almost a third of the city would be destroyed by the jolt and ensuing fires.

The report noted these figures may even be conservative since there is no way to calculate the toll from panic in buildings and subways.

Senate approves dam completion

WASHINGTON—The Senate voted Monday to authorize completion of the multi-million-dollar Tellico Dam, despite the threat it poses to the tiny snail darter.

On a vote of 48-44, senators followed the lead of the House of Representatives and agreed to grant the $115 million dam an exemption from the Endangered Species Act and any other law that might prohibit its completion.

Work on the dam was halted when it was discovered that its completion could lead to the extinction of the snail darter, a tiny fish.

Work has been halted for over two years because of court rulings that completion of the dam would threaten the tiny snail darter with extinction and thus violate the federal law that protects endangered species. The snail darter is on the government's official endangered species list.

Supporters of the dam have been trying to win an exemption from the law for over a year. They maintain the fish is not threatened by the dam and has been transplanted successfully to a nearby river.

They also maintain that the dam, if completed, would provide electricity for 20,000 homes in a time of national energy shortages, and the federal government should not "waste" the money it already has spent on the project.

Fish survive beneath algae on campus pond

by Laura Rzepka

Despite the dense layer of algae blanketing the north end of the campus pond, a "good population of fish" is surviving beneath it, Leonard Durham, zoology department chairman, said Monday.

The area surrounding the pond is highly fertile which causes the pond to develop the algae, Durham said. The density is caused by the accumulation of plant material, he added.

The south end of the pond was treated this summer but it is too late to work on the north end, Durham said.

The covering does not hurt the fish, Durham said. "If the pond gets a heavy ice cover this winter, the fish might be harmed but then they (the fish) will swim to the south end," he added.

"Students have collected six and seven-pound bass from the pond," Durham said.

The last time the pond was restocked was in 1975, he said.

Students in zoology, botany and life science classes use the pond for experiments, Durham said.

Besides the high fertility area around the pond, "crazy students" contribute to the present condition of the pond, Durham said.

Perhaps this "no parking" sign is a warning for all fish living in the algae-covered north end campus pond. (News photo by Bob Kasinecz)

Drainage from the Lantz Building also poses a problem to the pond, Durham said. However, funds are not available to improve the drainage from the building.

CEA finds no solution for teacher's contract

by Frank Adducci

The Charleston Education Association and the Charleston Unit One Board once again left a deliberation session without settlement after negotiation efforts continued late Friday night.

Mick Griffith, chief negotiator of CEA, said Monday that the CEA "shot proposals at the board" to no avail.

"We felt we had a contract that both sides could live with," Griffith said.

Griffith said that the CEA concurred with the school board to retain current contract language and chose to accept the school board's offer of an 11 percent salary increase for teachers this year.

"We withdrew our original 17 proposals and gave the board a contract that they wanted proposed," Griffith added.

However, all consolidations were ultimately rejected by school board negotiator Steve Johnson.

"The board sent back a rejection and resubmitted their original proposals," Griffith said.

Another area of disagreement in the negotiations is a proposed one-year contract for teachers and a two year contract proposed by the school board.

The CEA favors a one year contract, giving them negotiating power for next year.

After Friday night's session, the CEA has chosen another avenue of possible contract settlement.

"There has been so much misin-formation in the paper as to what has been happening that we want to get the facts to the public," Griffith said. "We want to inform them in hopes of gaining public support."

Griffith explained the CEA's action by saying "The board is elected by the public so hopefully it will listen to them."

"We want the public to know that we are making an honest and sincere effort to come to a conclusion," Griffith said.

Health club to meet and to discuss plans

All health education majors and minors are invited to attend this year's first Health Club meeting, at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Varsity Room of Lantz Building.

Sue Dedrickson, club secretary, said the main topic of discussion will be various projects the club is planning for this semester. Suggested are a party for club members and health faculty, and a booth in the University Union once a month to point out health tips to students.

Last year, the club sponsored the "Send a Mouse to College" drive for the American Cancer Society. Donations were 51 cents per person which bought a mouse for Cancer Society research. Club members also helped with the blood drive, Dedrickson said.

BHE can get a first hand look of Eastern

The Illinois Board of Higher Education will make a rare appearance today at Eastern. The BHE member's short tour of the campus will give them an opportunity for a firsthand look at some of Eastern's successes and possible problems.

Students and the BHE have agreed and disagreed on several issues over the years. One area of disagreement has been tuition increases.

The board has been aiming students toward paying one-third the cost of higher education by 1980, provided the state can increase financial scholarship money for needy students.

We think the state has not been successful in trying to reorganize the Illinois State Scholarship Commission program. The complex red tape and "need" formulas can not possibly offset constant tuition increases in the future.

And the future of higher education still seems poor in Illinois. We editorialized last April that Illinois ranked 42nd of 50 states in its funding of higher education in the past 10 years. This traditional lack of state support hurts the entire education system.

Eastern has been especially constricted when funding time has come around.

In the past two years, Eastern received only a 16 percent increase in state resources, the smallest amount of any state university.

But some improvements have been made, some at the last possible moment. Construction of the new textbook library which is slated to start in the spring, and current renovations of Old Main are examples of capital improvements being made.

Visiting BHE members can see firsthand some of the improvements they voted for. But we hope they will also notice several other areas that need attention.

Eastern is expanding outside of guidelines by which it is considered a small state school. With the influx of students during the 70's, many departments find themselves cramped for office space and classes spread all over campus.

BHE staff has the chance to look closely at the university and take advantage of meeting Eastern administrators and students to get some different angles on how state education goals should be handled in the years ahead.

We hope the meeting proves to be more than a surface look at a limited number of campus problems.

Nixon should pay for California home improvements

While a resolution passed by the U.S. Senate does not have the force of law, it should lead eventually to recovery of a substantial amount of money from former President Nixon for improvements to his San Clemente residence.

The resolution instructs the General Services Administration to try to collect the money from Nixon, who is in the process of selling the residence, Casa Pacifica, and buying an apartment in New York City.

All in all, during the Nixon presidency, the GSA contracted for about $702,000 worth of improvements. Some of them were for security. Others had little to do with protecting the president.

These ranged, for example to a $2,300 flagpole, renovation of a gazebo, $6,600 to a $33,000 fire protection system.

Some of the larger individual expenditures were a lighting and electronic system worth $217,000 and landscaping costing $137,623.

The improvements obviously have increased the value of the estate. Who doesn't want a serviceable gazebo? Since Nixon didn't pay for them.

While the improvements undoubtedly enhanced the quality of living at Casa Pacifica during and after Nixon's presidency, they should not enhance his bank account when the property is sold.

The "sense of the Senate" is based on a 1976 law governing the protection of presidents, with the intent that physical improvements for security paid for by the government should belong to the government.

The GSA should need the resolution and set about recovering property reimburseable costs, even if it has to take the fellow to court.

Letters to the editor

Keep promises

Editor,

Friday Sept. 7, I read the letters you received from Tom Knuth, Kurt Diana and others. They are typical of previous ones I have read recently. In my opinion, Knuth did a service for the students of this campus in scolding the Student Senate, if in fact, they considered the incident related to Bill Houlihan a big joke.

The act itself is nothing to be proud of, but to take it humorously is quite another. Isn't it the case then, that our student senators may be less fit for their positions than Houlihan? Yet I hear no one (including Knuth) urging them to resign.

I don't believe Houlihan finds comedy in what he has done, and I feel he is sincerely sorry. It has certainly caused him a great deal of personal and public embarrassment. Most of us will agree, however, that we have all found occasion to "show our ignorance" in one way or another. Those who would say "Speak for yourself!" are either naive or have placed themselves on a pedestal above the rest of the world.

Few (if any) of us are or ever will be saints. Let no one think I am attempting to justify Houlihan, I'm not. Criticism in its proper place and form can prove beneficial. However, efforts of passing judgments upon the moral character of another individual (such as has appeared in the editorials) can serve no valuable purpose but to persuade.

We should not conclude that because of what Houlihan has done, and apologized properly for, necessarily disdards his high level of interest and experience in student government, nor the dedication he has promised.

I personally don't feel he owes us anymore than that. He has caused no one, save himself, an injury. Why are some of you angels out there speaking as though he has. We could all sit around making ourselves feel good by dwelling on somebody else's mistakes.

But how many of you ran for student government? How many of you even bothered to vote? I didn't vote for Houlihan, but now that the student body has elected him, we should give him the support we can to help him help us.

For those who wish to carry on crusades under the banner of "responsibility," make it one holding Houlihan and student government to the promises they've made us. Let's not lose sight of the overwhelming student interests in the matter.

Jim Brown

Pure comedy

Editor,

The other day, as I read the Eastern News, I was disappointed to find that Steve Martin had not been appointed to any student government position. I am a person who takes comedy seriously, but student government is not funny anymore.

Yet for what other reason could they have been placed here? What do they do? Help those poor deprived souls get parking permits? I can walk. To insure that tuition doesn't go up? Mine went up over $30 last week.

Does anyone but student government take student government seriously? Isn't student government powerless to cause any real change? What accomplishments of any merit has student government made?

It looks to me like their only achievement has been to entertain. But is there cheaper forms of entertainment? Why should they waste money deciding how somebody else is going to waste the money? Why not eliminate the middle-man? Yes, just abolish student government and use the money to bring in movies and concerts—real quality entertainment.

The time has come for student government to defend its existence.

Leo Van Cleve

No ESP

Editor,

This letter is directed toward "all the people in disbelief" over the senate's action involving Bill Houlihan. Where were these outraged students when the decision was made?

Yes, the student senate is here to represent the student body, but we were not blessed with E.S.P.!

Why were these people not at the senate meeting Wednesday night, ready to voice these opinions, ready to provide some solutions? Is it easier to write a letter to the editor? Do these people know where we can find the dedication and talented leadership that we have found in Bill Houlihan?

I suggest that some of these "dedicated" individuals get out of their room on Wednesday nights and come and help the "backboneless" senators made these decisions.

I'm not saying that what Bill did was right, but there is a difference between being a saint and not getting caught in the act. Bill was wrong, but as he said at the senate meeting, nearly everyone has a day in their lives that they wish they could erase, and they cannot because they got caught.

Let's remember as humans we make mistakes, bad ones occasionally. By my memory, I don't recall Bill promising to be god in his campaign.

Southside Johnny and David Johnnsen head first concert

by Tim Jacobs

Southside Johnny and The Asbury Jukes will headline the first concert of the year at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Lantz gym, Mike Berggren, University Board concert coordinator, said.

Two other bands, the David Johansen Group and Europe will be playing backup, Berggren said.

Berggren said tickets are $5, $6, and $6.50. He added that ticket sales have been slow, and there are many good floorseats left.

Southside Johnny has appeared on Don Kirshner's Rock Concert on four occasions, and they recently played third bill to Foghat and Rush at Chicago's White Sox Park, Berggren said.

"I think a lot of people are going to miss a good concert simply because they haven't heard of the groups," Berggren said.

by Marc Pacette

Students contacted Sunday voiced their reactions and opinions concerning the Student Body President Bill Houlihan's conviction last May on a shoplifting charge from a local grocery store.

The response of students contacted at random Sunday varied from support to suggestions that Houlihan resign as student body president.

Diane Beckett said, "Nobody's perfect, he said he's sorry."

Sophomore Ted Soltuis said, "It wasn't a permissible act, but he seems to have talents. He should keep up the job. In a position of power there's always going to be people for and against you."

Sophomore Beth Moran said "I feel he should have told about it before he entered office."

"I think it's rather humorous," senior Dave LeBeau said. "I've never voted for student government...it's just a lot of fun and games."

Greg Edwards, a senior, said "It's not too ethical, but the public ridicule is enough...if it's his first offense."

Other students expressed their lack of confidence in Houlihan in stronger terms.

"It just reaffirms my faith in government. I was going to write a letter to the editor, but I couldn't have put it any better than the ones that were in," sophomore Jason Huffer said.

"If he had guts at all he would resign," junior Cindy Wells said. "The students would be better off without him."

Tina Calvert, a sophomore said, "It's a farce that he's getting away with it."

Several members of the student senate also commented on the Houlihan incident.

"Several students have approached me and only one was negative," senator Bob Glover said Monday.

"Some said it had nothing to do with student government, others thought it was humorous," he said.

Bonnie Bijak, executive vice president, said, "There haven't been a lot of comments to me. People admire him for admitting the truth—a lot of people would have run from that."

"I wish that they (students calling for Houlihan's resignation) would come in and meet Bill and talk to him," Bijak added.

John Grant, BOG representative, said, "I haven't had what I consider a sincere response."

Speaker of the Senate, Bill Mueller, said "Some—no—the majority that approached me are positive. They've said it happens to us all."

"Obviously, it's regrettable, but I don't think it will affect his credibility," Mueller added. Kevin Sandefer, financial vice president, said "The few who have talked to me didn't condone shoplifting obviously, but they were very supportive and offered encouragement, and expressed a desire that Bill stay in office."

Houlihan said Monday most of the students he has talked to have affirmed their faith in him.

"I talked to a girl in one of my classes the other day, and she said I should stay in office and I was glad to hear that," he said.

"This has been one of the most up and down weeks of my life. I am just trying to restore credibility in myself and my office," he said.

Yoga, creative computing offered

Bellydancing, yoga, creative computing and real estate for the consumer are some of the classes being offered by the Office of Public Service and Development this fall.

Wayne Owens, director of the office, said the variety of programs available to students and adults in the area permit them to pursue both professional and leisure time activities.

The non-credit classes run for five weeks or more, depending on the subject, Owens said.

A fee for each class is used primarily to pay the instructor for his time, he said. The fees vary with the class.

Because these classes are being offered as a public service, Owens said he hopes to make the community more aware of the university.

The number of courses offered is greater this year than before, and will be increasing each semester as interest in the program increases, Owens said.

To register for the courses, students can call 5023 or 3817 or attend the first class session, Owens said.

Kennedy will decide candidacy for president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, under growing pressure to run for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, has indicated he will decide whether to challenge President Carter in time to enter the primaries.

Kennedy told two New York Democrats, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, and Gov. Hugh Carey, that “by Thanksgiving I’ll have a pretty good idea” whether or not he will run, according to sources familiar with the conversation.

Tom Southwick, Kennedy’s press aide, acknowledged that the conversation took place but refused to discuss the substance.

Southwick also said that “clearly, a number of people in the party have said he, Kennedy, ought to run.”

The aide also refused to discuss a possible Kennedy timetable for deciding whether to enter the race.

If Kennedy decided in late November to challenge Carter, the Massachusetts senator would have time to get his name on the ballot in such early presidential primaries as New Hampshire and Massachusetts, where he would be heavily favored over Carter.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Thomas P. O’Neill Jr., D-Mass., told reporters he thought Kennedy could have the nomination if he sought it. But the speaker added that “I don’t have any reason to believe he’s a candidate.”

The conversation Kennedy had with Moynihan and Carey occurred Aug. 9, at Brockport, N.Y., where all three attended the Special Olympics, a charitable event strongly supported by the Kennedy family.

Elevator abuse decreases

Although elevator breakdowns may appear to be more acute to some dorm residents, Everett Alms, supervisor of the physical plant, said maintenance for elevators is down from the previous year.

Alms said elevator breakdowns are common at the beginning of each semester and breakdowns for this semester are no more numerous than any other August or September period.

Problems occur because of student abuse, Alms said. Abuse includes forcing elevator doors open, rearranging wiring, and student overloads.

Carman Hall counselor John Steiner said that he never has seen as much trouble with Carman’s elevators as he has this fall.

“Usually the first couple of days are when the most trouble occurs,” Steiner said. “Most of the abuse is from student overloads.”

An overload is when the elevator has reached its maximum capacity, Alms said. Elevator overloads are marked and posted in each elevator.

New elevators can run between $38,000 and $40,000, Alms said.

“The biggest problem is that students abuse the elevators to no end,” Alms said. There would be fewer problems if there was less abuse, he added.

Pharmacist leads fight to lower phone rates on calls to Mattoon

by Ted Gregory

A retired pharmacist is leading the fight to eliminate the long distance rates being charged for calls made between Charleston and Mattoon.

Edward Kenney, 75, of Charleston has obtained thousands of signatures in Charleston and Mattoon to show ICTC officials that he better be taken seriously.

“I’ve made a couple of hundred calls to people to find out their feelings and the response has been tremendous,” Kenney said Monday.

“We have about 3,000 signatures from Charleston and about 2,000 from Mattoon, and we’ve been at work on this thing for only about a week,” he said.

Kenney predicted about 6,000 signatures from Charleston and about 8,000 from Mattoon by the time he brings his case to ICTC officials.

Kenney said he has done a great deal of traveling throughout the northern part of Illinois and seen several twin cities.

“But I can’t remember one that had toll calls between the two cities,” Kenney said.

“For many years, I’ve felt this thing is preposterous,” he added.

Although Kenney admitted the changed rates would mean an increase in everyone’s bills, he was optimistic about the chances of his campaign’s success.

“I’m not saying that we’ll settle this thing by the first of the year but we’re proceeding and I think we can win it,” he said.

“We badly need people to distribute petitions and we need a little financial assistance,” Kenney said.

Anyone interested in helping Kenney can call him at 348-0381.

With today's gas prices, there's one good way to economize . . . a Long Distance Call. It can keep you in touch for a fraction of the cost of traveling. Let the people back home know how you are and that you still miss them. Long Distance, one of the best M.P.G. ratings around.

*(Based on a direct-dialed two minute call all day Saturday to 5 p.m. Sunday)

Long Distance, it's inexpensive and late night and weekend rates are even better!

Pepsi is awarded soda vending contract in dorms

by R. W. Monroe

New vending machines were installed in residence halls this summer. Housing Director Lou Hencken said Friday.

"Pepsi was awarded the contract for beverage dispensers because they gave a lower bid than Canteen, but Canteen still maintains all other vending machines on campus," Hencken said.

Pepsi owns and maintains the machines at no cost to housing, and five students are responsible for filling them on a daily basis, Hencken added.

Money from the machines will go into a special fund to be used for renovations in the various halls, Hencken said.

Selected areas in the respective halls will be painted in the near future using funds collected from the machines.

Housing also owns the foosball tables in the residence halls and the washers and dryers.

"The foosball tables were originally contracted on a rental basis, and then after they had made some money others were purchased outright," Hencken said.

Two students are employed to repair all the tables in the residence halls, Associate Director of Housing, Randy Johnson said.

The washers and dryers were purchased Jan. 1 of this year from Templar Enterprises for $1 each, Johnson said.

Johnson explained that Housing was considering purchasing new machines for the halls. But after negotiations, Templar offered to sell the machines in the halls.

Money from the foosball tables and the washers and dryers go into a separate fund, Johnson said.

Each of the residence halls is getting $1.50 per student per semester added to their social fee account from these funds, Johnson added.

COTE to discuss rules

Speech and hearing regulations for student teachers will be reviewed by the Council on Teacher Education Tuesday, the COTE chairman said Monday.

COTE chairman Patricia McAlister said, "I imagine we'll be looking at the regulations in terms of reviewing student appeals."

She explained all prospective student teachers must pass tests on speech impediments and hearing ability and some may wish to appeal the test results.

In other business, the COTE will hear a report from the history department concerning its criteria for student teachers, McAlister said.

"As of last year, we set up requirements for each department that has student teachers to submit a report," and they have been submitting reports in turn, she said.

The COTE will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union addition Tuscola-Arcola Room.

Knight found guilty, but extradition unlikely

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Controversial basketball coach Bobby Knight, back home in Indiana, had his six-month sentence reaffirmed Monday after he refused to appeal his conviction of assault against a Puerto Rican police officer during the Pan American Games in July.

The Indiana University coach, who said in a news conference Sunday at Bloomington, Ind., that he has no intention of returning to Puerto Rico, formally was sentenced by District Judge Rurico Rivera. Knight also was ordered to pay a $500 fine, the maximum for a misdemeanor charge. Both the sentence and fine originally were announced when Knight was found guilty in absentia last Aug. 22.

The judge immediately issued an arrest order. It was not expected, however, that Puerto Rico, a U.S. Commonwealth, would attempt to extradite Knight to where he coached the U.S. basketball team to a gold medal in the Pan American Games.

Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo said after Knight was found guilty that he would not consider extradition for a misdemeanor charge. Indiana's Gov. Otis R. Bowen also said he "would not be willing to allow Bobby Knight to be extradited."

Knight was unavailable for comment after Monday's court action.

When the sentence was handed down last month by Rivera, he gave Knight two weeks to show up in court to file an appeal. The judge ordered the sentence imposed Monday since Knight failed to come to court.

The incident leading to Knight's conviction on a charge of aggravated assault occurred during a practice session at the Pan Am Games. A women's basketball team from Brazil arrived eight minutes early at the gym where the U.S. men's team was winding up a practice. Knight asked that the Brazilians be asked to leave until his team completed its drills. Then the controversy started.

The police officer, Jose

Silva, said Knight slugged him, claimed that Knight used abusive language and that the coach resisted arrest.

Knight, at a news conference Sunday, repeated basically what he had said earlier in San Juan, that he brushed Silva's face with his fingers in a reflex action.

"I thought he, Silva, was going to hit me," Knight said.

Knight acknowledged at the news conference that he said in San Juan that the "Puerto Rican team was a heck of a lot easier to beat than their court system. That infuriated a lot of people, but I was not trying to infuriate anybody."

"Then, when the silver medal was presented, I said, 'I'll clap for that. They should get second place. They've been a second-class operation all week.' What I said I meant with some degree of humor. But for the most part it was not accepted this way."

Youngsters dominate U.S. Open, tennis future

NEW YORK (AP) — They are so young and so good. You'd think, though, that there would be some sort of youthful uncertainty, some remnant of adolescent self doubt.

But then 16-year-old Tracy Austin and 20-year-old John McEnroe are the champions of one of the two most prestigious tennis tournaments in the world—the U.S. Open. And they didn't get that way by being usual.

You ask Austin if she now has claim to No. 1, and she replies carefully: "That's reaching a little bit. It's very close, though. I might be No. 2. I might be Martina, me, then Chrissie."

What?

Yes, after beating four-time titlist Chris Evert Lloyd in the final, Austin has some basis for asserting supremacy. Lloyd for the first year in her career has not won a major championship.

Austin's 6-4, 6-3 victory Sunday was her third over the 24-year-old Lloyd, who for years ruled tennis the way Austin probably will. Martina Navratilova won Wimbledon for a second year, but Austin beat her in the semifinals here.

She now is the youngest person to win the open.

And McEnroe, of course, wasn't feigning modesty.

"I consider myself on a given day the best," he said after beating fellow New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis 7-5, 6-3, 6-3 for the men's title. "But I think Borg is the best player in the world for the year."

"But I think I'm No. 2 or 3."

The computerized rankings made by the men's and women's associations find Austin and McEnroe ranked No. 3 in the world, but when new ratings come out they are likely to move up. Unquestionably, tennis' future has started.

Rugby club blanks NIU 14-0, 24-0

DEKALB — Strong forward play, aggressive running and defense by the back line were key factors in a pair of shutouts for the Eastern rugby club over Northern Illinois University on Saturday.

The ruggers opened their fall season with 14-0 and 24-0 convincing victories.

Club president Gary Siville was pleased with the 14-0 first game performance citing efforts of the players that made the win possible.

"Our backs were a little ragged on offense, but they shut off Northern completely on defense," Siville said. "Northern had improved a lot this year, but every time they won the ball and started to move it down the line, Chuck Squires and Don Baker were there to squash them. Our defense kept them from ever mounting any kind of sustained offensive action."

Siville handed Eastern the first score of the day, while Mike Jones paced the field for additional goals.

"Jones kicked two penalty goals and he set up our first try with a 40-yard run down to their five-yard line," Siville said. "They had three men trying to bring him down there, so he tossed me the ball, and I had an almost free shot at the goal."

Additional points came from Mark Weimer who dropped on the ball in the in-goal from seven yards out for the score.

In the second match of the afternoon, Eastern handily defeated the Huskies by a 24-0 margin.

Siville once again started the Eastern attack with a drop goal from six yards out.

"It looked kind of odd," scrum half Wally Targos said. "But, actually, it was a harder kick to make than a longer one would have been, since he had to put such a high arch on it."

Vic Bobb provided a major portion of the Eastern scoring during the second game with a drop ball goal, a penalty goal and a goal being added to the tally through his efforts.

Stu Grubbs and Ron Ralston added goals via 60 and 65 yard runs respectively, while Joe Harowski also collected points for the Eastern squad.

The rugby club will continue its season when it hosts Terre Haute at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Panther defense moves into football spotlight

Something was unusual about Eastern's football team's locker room after its 38-0 romp over Butler Saturday.

Members of the media were not so crowded around the usual Panther celebrities.

Sure, Poke Cobb gained his 109 yards, Steve Turk passed for 216 and James Warring grabbed seven passes for 85 yards, although the All-American did also uncharacteristically drop a few chances.

But the real story Saturday, and the story so far this season is the Panther defense.

After all, Eastern's offense was forced to punt five times by a less than awesome Butler defense. Butler's offense could not get five first downs all day against the Panther defenders.

Butler rolled up a grand total of 47 offensive yards and never drove past the 50 yard line against the Panther defense.

The defense also accounted for one of Eastern's four touchdowns when linebacker Ira Jefferson blocked a punt and Don Pittman scooped up the ball and scampered into the end zone.

Of course, Butler may not be the proper yardstick for measuring how the Panthers will do against much better competition the rest of the season.

But the D was also the key to Eastern's season opening 24-15 win over a much stronger South Dakota squad.

South Dakota, last year's North Central Conference champions enjoyed excellent field position for much of the game's second half, but every time but one, Eastern was able to keep the Coyotes out of the end zone.

South Dakota's 52-yards in eight plays drive and a 48-yard touchdown pass play were Eastern's only defensive blemishes.

So after standing in the background last year when the Eastern offense took the limelight, the defense is getting some notice this fall, just like defensive coordinator John Teerlinck predicted before the season.

Saturday, the reporters all ran to the row of lockers manned by the awesome front four, Pete Catan, Charlie Krutsinger, Randy Melvin and Ken Winbush.

Melvin, who had 11 tackles, three sacks and forced a fumble, drew most of the attention, but the 225-pound junior left tackle pointed out that much of his success was due to the fact that right tackle Krutsinger was often double-teamed.

And Teerlinck was quick to point out that much of the front four's success was due to the secondary.

"Sacks are the result of coverage, and coverage is the result of the rush. They all work together," Teerlinck said.

Together they were all super Saturday, and if Catan, an honorable mention All-American last season as a sophomore, has anything to do with things, the Panthers will get even better.

"We were better today than last week, but what really scares me is how great can we be?" Catan said.

"From now on if we win the coin flip, I hope we decide to kick off to them, because I want to go on defense first," Catan added.

That's confidence. And so far, that confidence is well-founded.
